

The Power of 3: Lessons in Leadership

The number three is everywhere in life but it takes some people longer to catch on than others. The Power of 3 provides a foundation for leadership using techniques in combinations of three including foundational principles, dealing with missed expectations, and dealing with conflict. It deals with the impact of love and despair on the ability to lead and culminates with the three things all leaders do: assist, inspire, and depend on others. The principles are relayed through story-telling which despite all efforts to categorize, dissect, and analyze human events remains the longest surviving and most effective method of instruction that the world has ever encountered.
